

A weekly message to help your organization achieve

MAXIMUM...

November 16, 2010 – Issue 81

MAXFACT #73

“Monkey see. Monkey do.”
– Unknown

We have opportunities to role model to our team, customers, and families occur each day. How we respond to every situation is not only telling of our maturity, but also what kind of leadership material we’re made of.

Leaders continue to develop themselves purposefully to become better leaders. Make that your goal. Challenge yourself to improve and allow your proper role modeling to be inspiring to others.

If you have questions or comments about today’s Challenges message, please contact us at...

www.maximumbizconsult.com
(717) 755-5419

MAXIMUM
Business Consulting, LLC
a mentor capital firm

...CHALLENGES

Ever have a sense of being overwhelmed? Maybe like you’re sinking in quicksand?

We all hit periods when it feels like the sky is falling. Those times are the “valleys” we hear about in business and in life. While everyone would elect to enjoy the “peaks” rather than experience the valleys, the truth is there is A LOT to gain from experiencing severe challenges.

It is your opportunity to learn about your team, your customers, your friends, and most importantly, yourself.

They heat steel to temper it...that means, to strengthen it. Challenges are tempering periods for the soul. Rather than see them as horrible, try embracing the value they present.

If you handle challenges properly, the result is a better team, a better company, and a better YOU.

Ponder This...

Does my team see me as a rock of support when tough times come?

We invite you to share this Memo with a friend.